

11th International EMBL PhD Student Symposium
29-31 October 2009, Heidelberg, Germany

Science Writing Prize

The PhD Symposium Science Writing Prize is dedicated to promote science writing and encourage PhD students to connect with a wide audience through their words.

We are looking for motivated PhD students who can communicate the excitement and importance of research in a style that will entertain, inform and stimulate the readers from various backgrounds to appreciate the scientific contributions made by researchers all over the world.

The prize is given annually for an outstanding piece of science writing designed to communicate a topical issue to a non-scientific audience.

The sum awarded is 1.000 €.

The winner will be invited to participate in the EMBL PhD symposium where she/he can read her/his piece in front of the audience. All the expenses for travel and accommodation will be reimbursed.

Entries must be submitted until 15th of September 2009
